NANB Masters Scholarship, Stéphanie Brideau

Hello, let me introduce myself, Stéphanie Brideau. I am originally from the Acadian Peninsula, a French-speaking community in northeastern New Brunswick. I am a person who loves to get involved and I have a passion for taking care of people. Growing up, I transformed this passion into a profession.

Since 2017, I have been practicing the wonderful profession of nurse in my province. I have worked in hospitals and in home care. I am also involved in nursing research in palliative care.

For me, the quality of care I provide to my patients is essential and I feel privileged every day to have the chance to support patients and their families in managing their health. I have always had the ambition to become better and to deepen my skills. It is with this in mind that in 2022, I returned to school and began the master's program in nursing and nurse practitioner at the Université de Moncton.

In this master's program, I decided to get involved to promote the profession of nurse practitioner. During these two years, I had the opportunity to fulfill the role of student representative and student ambassador for nurse practitioners within the Consortium national de formation en santé.

I am completing this course shortly and I am eager to become a health care provider and to be able to offer my community better access to primary health care. I love my profession, and I am eager to discover the next professional opportunities that will be available to me.
